

The International Congress on Insect Science in 2025
& the 6th International Conference of Insect Genomics
& the 9th International Symposium on Insect Physiology,
Biochemistry, and Molecular Biology

To advance cutting-edge research in entomology and related fields, and to promote academic exchange and collaboration among scientists worldwide, the International Congress on Insect Science in 2025 (ICIS 2025), alongside the 6th International Conference of Insect Genomics and the 9th International Symposium on Insect Physiology, Biochemistry, and Molecular Biology, will be grandly held in Kaifeng, a historically and culturally significant city in China, from August 7–11, 2025. As one of the most influential international academic events in the field of entomology, the conference will be themed "Entomologists Advancing Global Innovation and Sustainability." The event aims to provide a platform for top global scholars to communicate and exchange ideas, and to promote research innovation and sustainable development in entomology. The conference will include plenary lectures, parallel sessions, poster presentations, and a young scholars' forum. We warmly invite experts in the field of entomology from all over the world to join us in Kaifeng for this exciting event (<https://icis2025.scievent.com>).
